

Our Mission
 We foster health for people and the planet through love, healing food and empowering the next generation.

Vision
 A healthy, caring, just and sustainable world

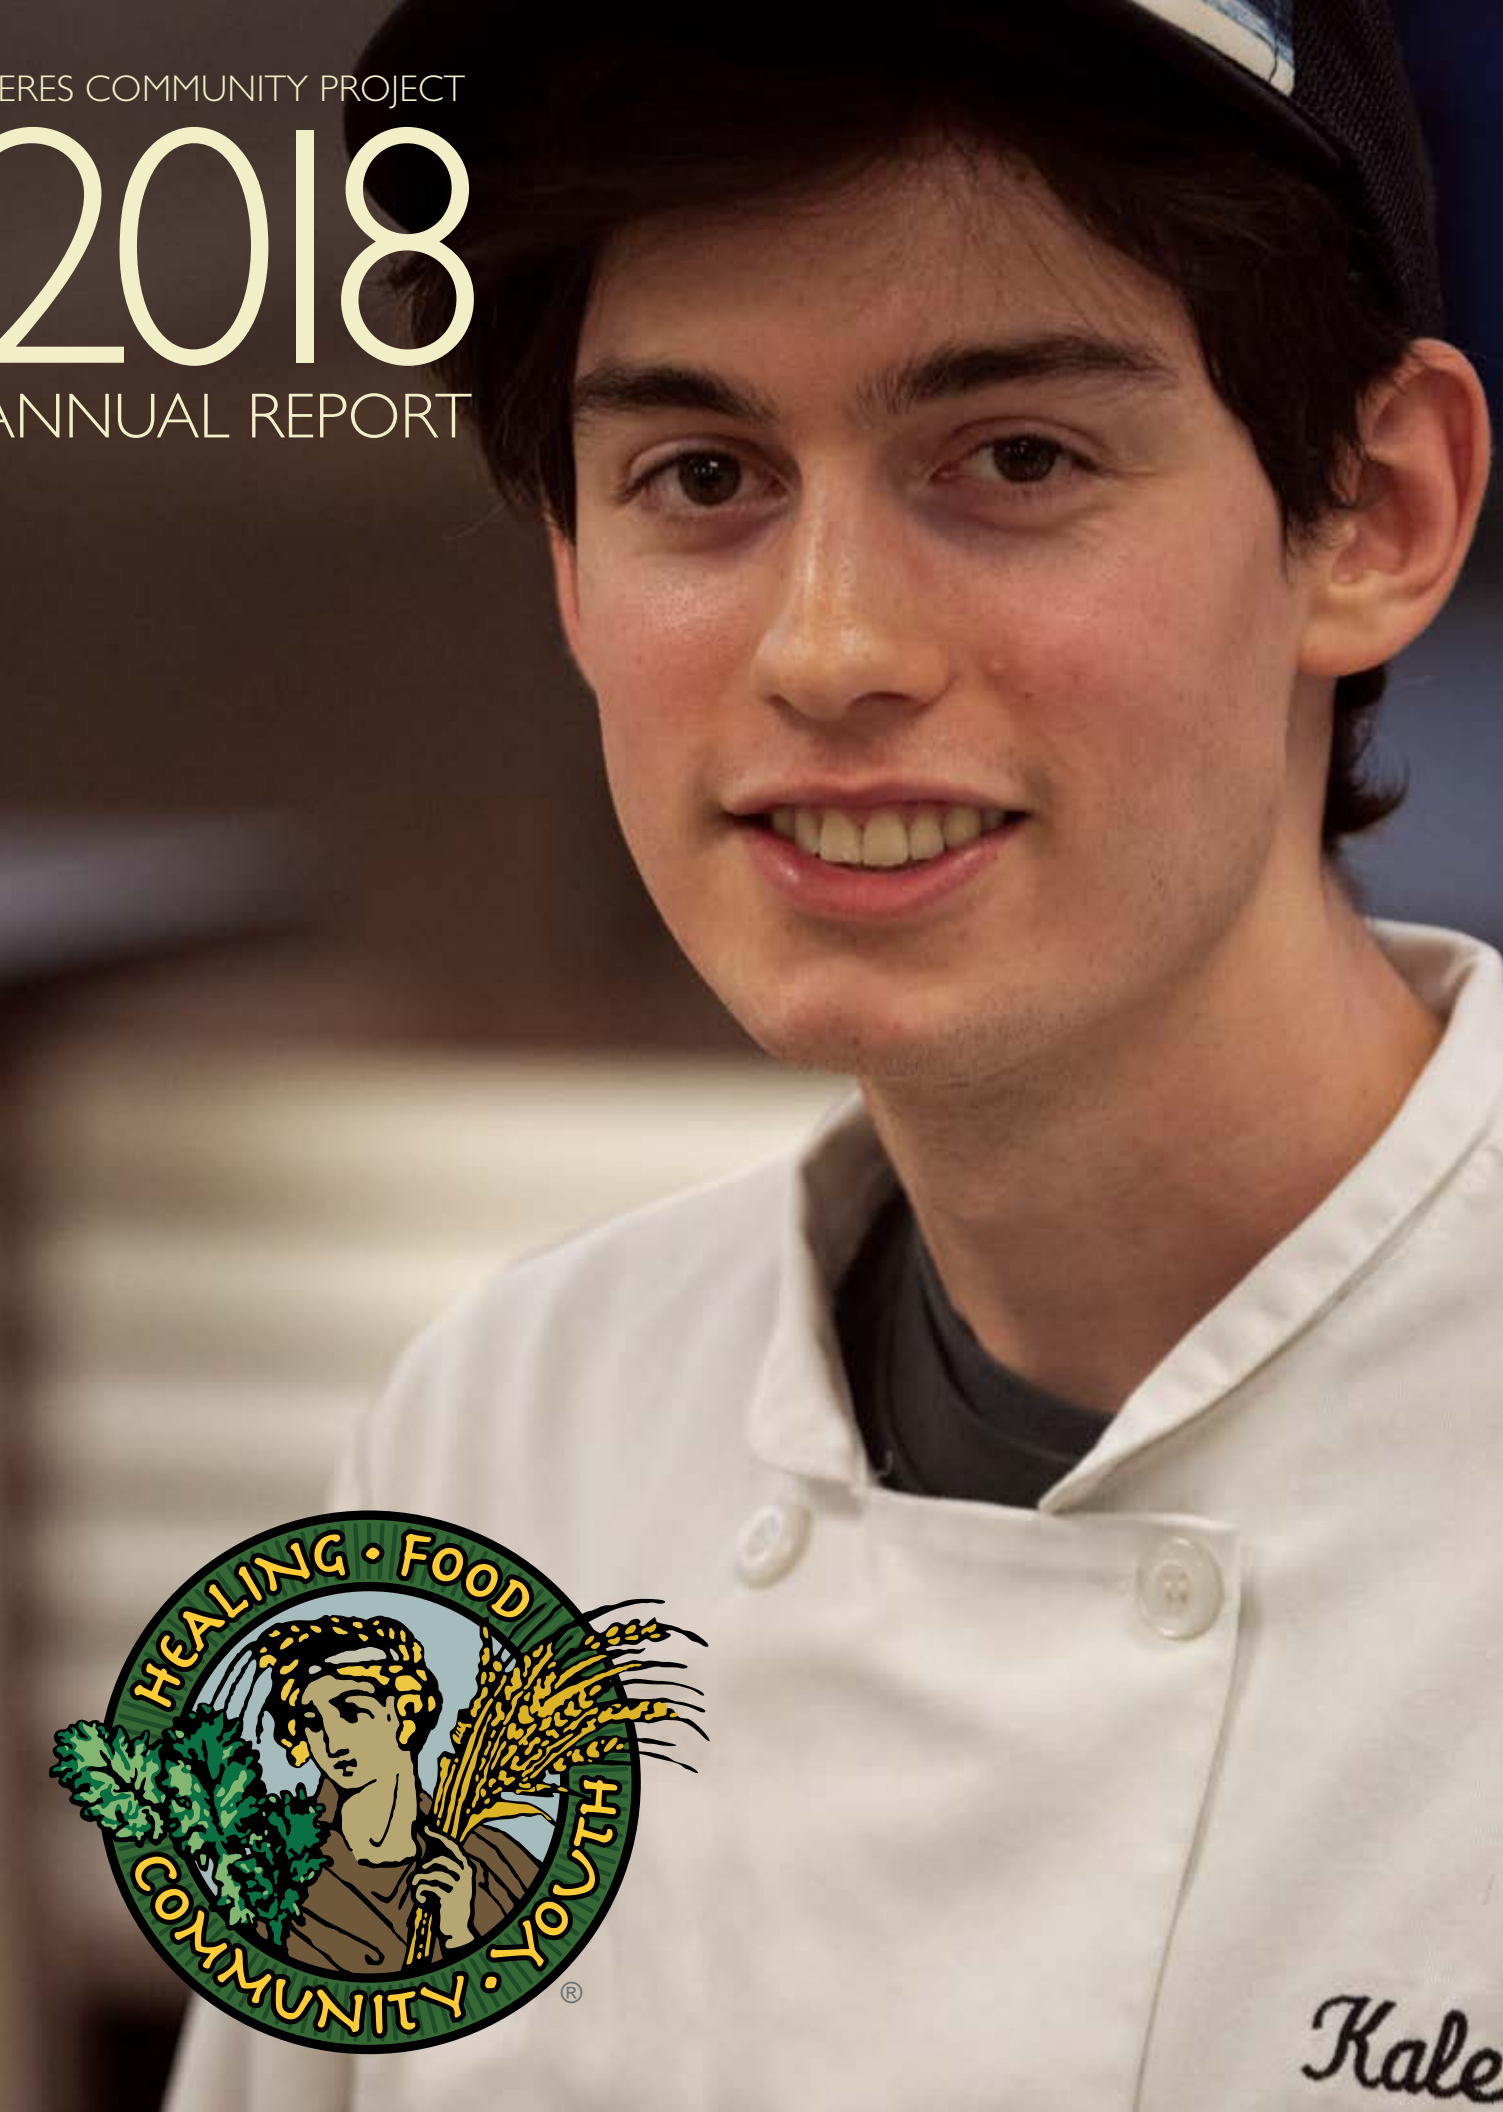

Our Impact
 Ceres Community Project is a leader in creating an unhealthy food system. Our comprehensive approach includes:

- Healing Meals for Healthy Communities – Working in Sonoma and Marin counties we provide 100,000+ organic medically tailored meals a year to those facing serious illness; empower 430+ young people with the skills, knowledge and confidence to live healthy, productive lives; educate about healthy eating and deepen caring connections across the community.
- National Affiliate Program – We train and support teams across the country and now internationally to bring Ceres' Healing Meals program to their communities. In 2018, Ceres' seven active Affiliates provided 108,000 organic meals, and we trained two new teams in Buffalo, New York and Aarhus, Denmark.
- Transforming Health Care & Food Systems – Through a ground-breaking $6 million study with the state of California, and several smaller studies with Kaiser Permanente and Sonoma County Department of Health Services – Ceres is building the evidence base that providing medically tailored meals helps patients while saving health care dollars. The goal is to change health care policy so that everyone has access to the healthy food they need to get and stay well. Within the food is medicine eco-system Ceres is leading conversations about the vital intersection between sustainable and organic food systems and health.

Our Work

We are facing a growing crisis in the United States and around the world. Poor eating habits – particularly the reliance on fast and processed foods and refined sugars – are causing an epidemic of chronic disease. Too many people – including 42 million Americans – can't afford the healthy whole foods they need to live a happy and productive life. Agricultural practices are destroying habitats, depleting soils and contributing significantly to climate disruption. And too many of us feel alone, without the connections and support that are essential for health.

Connecting Personal and Environmental Health

Media Stories Reach 42 Million

Stories about Ceres' food as medicine work helped educate millions of people about the connection between food and health, including a major story in the New York Times Science section and a segment on The Doctors medical talk show. Ceres' CEO Cathryn Couch was also featured on the Sonoma County TEDx stage where she gave a talk about the vital connection between food and health, and built important partnerships to promote this diet within the food is medicine movement. The box on the left lists the coalition members where we are leading conversations about the importance of food quality standards for food as medicine interventions.

Teens prepare meals at our Sebastopol program site with support from adult Kitchen Mentor volunteers.

Ceres Community Project is at the forefront of a movement to build a healthy, just and sustainable world where every person has access to the healthy food and caring connections they need to thrive. Ceres – and our Affiliate Partners – are the only nutritional meal providers in the country committed to 100% organic food, and the only ones engaging youth as the primary gardeners and chefs. Building on our decade of experience supporting individuals with serious illness, Ceres is now leading policy change in two vital areas: integrating food into health care as a reimbursable medical expense, and establishing food quality standards that support health for people and planet.

Changing the World One Meal at a Time

Together, our seven Affiliate Partners served:

- Clients: 1,300
- Meals: 108,000
- Teens: 850
- Teen Hours: 12,700
